Nurses are often responsible for the care of many patients at the same time and have to prioritise their daily nursing care activities. The inability to provide all the care patients need may lead nurses to face certain professional challenges or moral dilemmas. This workshop will have key focus on improving knowledge on ethical issues of missed nursing care and nursing perspective on resource allocation. It will also address burnout syndrome, ethical dilemmas in relation to adverse events and also moral dilemmas in everyday nursing practice.

Aims:

- 1) to improve knowledge on ethical issues of missed nursing care
- 2) to improve knowledge on resource allocation as it relates to missed nursing care
- 3) to facilitate and encourage discussion on the missed nursing care phenomenon and all of its ethical issues
