

Special Issue – Missed Nursing Care.

The Journal of Nursing Management is calling for papers on the topic of Missed Nursing Care. The concept is closely related to others including Care Left Undone and Implicit Rationing of Care, and papers will be welcomed which explore these issues. This special issue will offer researchers and nurses an opportunity to further explore this contemporary concern for the profession and to advance research in the field. We hope to explore the practical application of research findings in relation to nurse managers.

In this special issue we welcome high quality contributions in the following areas:

Original Research Studies: These report on the progress and/or outcomes of original research (maximum 5,000 words, including the abstract and references).

Review Articles: These summarize, analyse and evaluate published material on the topic whilst offering new theories, syntheses or ideas (maximum 5,000 words, including the abstract and references).

Commentaries: These offer well argued, thought provoking commentary or discussion on current issues in the field (maximum 3,000 words, including the abstract and references).

The deadline for submissions is 30th November 2019. For more information, please see our Author Guidelines or contact the Editorial Office at jnmedoffice@wiley.com.

Guest Editors:

Marcia Kirwan (Ireland)

Assistant Professor, School of Nursing and Human Sciences, Dublin City University.

Maria Schubert (Switzerland)

Professor, School of Health Professions, Institute of Nursing, ZHAW Zurich University of Applied Science.

The Journal of Nursing Management is an international forum which informs and advances the discipline of nursing management and leadership. The Journal encourages scholarly debate and critical analysis resulting in a rich source of evidence which underpins and illuminates the practice of management, innovation and leadership in nursing and health care. It publishes current issues and developments in practice in the form of research papers, in-depth commentaries and analyses. The Journal of Nursing Management welcomes papers from researchers, academics, practitioners, managers, and policy makers from a range of countries and backgrounds which examine these issues.